other countries represented.

Tickets are on sale between twelve to two o'clock each day in the Union and the Engineering Building. However, for those who are not able to buy tickets in these places, there will still be some good seats at your disposal at the door.

The performances take place from Tuesday to Friday evenings, at 8:30 p.m. in Moyse Hall.

Famous Surgeon Lectures

Last Friday night the Medical Undergraduate Society was fortunate enough to have as speaker, Sir Jeffrey Keynes, the famed British surgeon who is on a Sir Arthur Sims travelling fellowship, for a year during which he will circle the globe, delivering lectures. Dr. Francis, the Librarian of the Osler Library, and a cousin of Sir William Osler's, introduced Sir Keynes, who spoke on Harvey and He is married to the grand daughter of Darwin, and later appointed to the rank of Medical his discoveries on the circulation of the blood, stressing particularly Harvey's character and life.

NFCUS President Expresses Hope; Says Move Would Aid McGill

By Gordon Wasserman

"McGill has much to gain from and much to add to the National Federation of Canadian University Students", according to Gabriel Gagnon, NFCUS national president.

Gagnon said this during an exclusive interview at McGill last week. He was in Montreal for a three day visit to the campus during which time he addressed the SEC and last Friday's informal meeting of the Students' Society.

The National Federation of Canadian University Students is a nation-wide body representing the students of twenty-three Canadian Universities. McGill, University of Manitoba and University of Montreal are the only major Universities in Canada not officially affiliated with N.F.C.U.S.

McGill withdrew from N.F.C.U.S. in 1955 after a vote of the Students' Society. At the time the students did not feel that NFCUS was doing anything to justify the annual fee of .50 cents which every student had to pay.

Many Changes In NFCUS Framework

Since that time much has been done within the framework of the national body in order to win back the support of the numbers of major universities which had followed McGill's example and had dropped out. At the last NFCUS national conference, which was held at Sir George Williams College last fall, many of the demands of these disassociated schools were incorporated within the scope of the federation.

As a result of this last conference NFCUS so modified its policies that the University of Toronto and UBC have rejoined. "The feeling about rejoining is also very strong at many of the other non-member Canadian universities" according to the National president.

External Affairs Dept Controls NFCUS

partment of the Students' Executive Council. Ralph Ordower, chairman of the department, attended the Sir George Conference as an observer. He stated in an interview that, in his opinion, "NFCUS has been adequately altered (since 1955) as to merit McGill's reentry". Ordower went on to add that he felt that "aligning oneself with a national organization was an important 'thing'".

However, he continued, these were his personal views on the subject and they did not represent any official stand of the SEC. "We will have to wait until the election of the new Council", Ordower concluded. The election of the new SEC members will take place next week.

Finance Problem Has Been Readjusted

As for the matter of finances, which were the major factor in McGill's decision to leave NFCUS, they have been readjusted so as to make it easier for the few larger universities to meet the annual fee bill. This has been done by putting the fees on a sliding scale. In this way the larger universities such as McGill, UBC and Toronto will pay considerably less per capita than

HUNGARIAN PREMIER EXPLAINS NAGY EXILE

Budapest, Nov. 26 — (UP) — Russian-backed Hungarian Premier Janos Kadar said tonight that former premier Imre Nagy was exiled because he allowed the murder of "scores of Communists". He said Nagy would have to stay out of the country for some time. Kadar said the former premier might be killed by "provocateurs" if he returned to Hungary, and the crime would be attributed to the government. But he gave no positive of Nagy's present whereabouts.

Kadar's statements were the first official explanation of Nagy's disappearance, since the government announced he had gone to Romania at "his own request." Kadar made the explanation in a 30 minute broadcast over Radio Budapest in reply to demands from Hungary's strike leaders for a face-to-face meeting with Nagy to see for themselves whether he really is a free man as the Communists claim.

The Budapest Workers' Council, claiming to represent 65 per cent of the striking miners and factory workers throughout the country, insisted on a conference with Nagy, their own press, their own workers "militia" and distribution of western Red Cross aid to workers.

Editorial

The High and the Mighty

Canadian College papers this past week have highlighted news of estrangements between Campus and their various councils. At UBC the Council passed a motion not to do anything about the Hungarian Crisis but the weight of Campus reaction forced them to reverse their stand. In Sir George Williams College there were reports of a movement to abolish the Council entirely. The Toronto Varsity criticized the Council bitterly for not raising Student Society fees, obviously with the thought in mind of printing bigger, better, and more Varsityes.

Perhaps the strangest case of war between campus and paper against representative council was waged at Newfoundland Memorial University at St. John's. The University was somehow deprived of the use of the facilities of its new hockey rink and at its inauguration the mayor was soundly booed. At this point the mayor turned his wrath upon the students claiming that as this was a memorial arena when they were booing him they were booing the dead of two wars. The local newspaper, in much the same manner as the Gazette turned on the students of Laval following the Quebec riots, claimed the students at Newfoundland Memorial University had been disrespectful to the men who gave up their lives that this country might exist as a free nation.

The Student Representative Council bowed under this pressure and sent the President to "explain" to the mayor. The College weekly paper, the Muse, in an extra mimeographed edition urged the students to protest this cowardly act of the Council and to write letters to the local papers demanding the right to voice disapproval. The editor of the Muse in as strong language as the law allows, expressed his shock at the local journalists falling for as cheap and maudlin a stunt as that pulled by Mayor Deits. A meeting was called in which the students upheld their rights to voice criticism even of their mayor, censured their Council for its cowardly action. The Council sent a delegate to the mayor all the same. Somehow the story is vaguely familiar.

Word Of Praise

There are two organizations on campus that have so far this year provided an excellent example of what student bodies can do when they really devote themselves to bringing variety and interest to campus.

The first is the Debating Union which this year so far has planned and carried out a series of on-campus debates that have given students a chance to see different debaters in action. By inviting the Harvard team and the Osgoode team, the Debating Union showed the American and the British style of debate at its best. The Capital Punishment debate, in which a McGill team will oppose two representatives of the Liberal Party, who also are members of the House of Commons Committee on Capital Punishment, is an excellent idea that could be expanded. Perhaps even members of the Union National Party could be tempted down to McGill to debate in public upon the provincial attitude to Federal aid to universities. This sort of debate provides a valuable, informative, and entertaining background to current events.

The great success of the Pete Seeger evening, which held the promise of lasting all night, is more than adequate tribute to the ability of the Scope committee. There has been some feeling that Scope is strictly for long hairs, but Pete Seeger, with his informality, his audience participation and his application of the universal language of song, dispelled this idea. Scope showed last year, with its sponsorship of Shivaram, that it is aware of the need to bring new and exciting experiences to the student body. By awakening interests in music and art in every form in the student whilst at college, Scope is doing its bit towards that seemingly distant goal — a truly Canadian culture.

This Editorial is not meant as a stick to beat other campus bodies, or to arouse them to emulate Scope and the Debating Union. It is meant as a word of praise for two student organizations that are endeavouring to serve the campus, and doing an excellent job.

DUPLESSISM

By Gyde Sheppard

Premier Maurice Duplessis refuses to accept Federal aid for education on the grounds that such "interference" on the part of the Canadian Government constitutes a threat to French Canadian and Catholic self-determination. Quebec becomes in Duplessis's eyes totally a reserve of the French Canadians and (thought this does not follow) of the Catholics.

Firstly, Mr. Duplessis cannot use French Canadian and Catholic as synonymous terms. This leads to the fallacy that all French Canadians being Catholics, therefore the Catholic Church is as stubborn a preacher of Duplessis's French Canadianism as the Man himself. It simply is untrue to identify Duplessis's nationalism with the Catholic Church: witness the article on Quebec's political morality by two Laval priests attacking the political structure of the Province. The Church to-day and yesterday have often been in direct opposition to a nationalistic government. There are, we may add, other Catholics in Canada besides the French Canadians. Not all French Canadians are Catholics. When Mr.

Duplessis stands for re-election he does not forget to appeal to the other religious denominations for support.

A Race

Secondly, Mr. Duplessis claims Federal aid would treat French Canadians as a race. In doing this he implies that they are a race apart from other North American ethnic groups. This is untrue. From sociological and historical studies it can be seen that French Canadians have common North American characteristics with other ethnic groups on this continent such as the English Canadians.

Education

The problem of education in Quebec is a North-American problem. Both English and French Canadians have vital educational needs. It is in both their interests to accept federal money to alleviate this need. It is not in the interests of the French Canadians for Duplessis to refuse grants any more than it is in the interests of the English Canadians. The "protection of French Canadian rights" is the slogan by which the Union Nationale party stays in power while using financial blackmail. This slogan is not the issue. The French Canadians have a vital contribution to make to Canadian-North American Culture: so have the English Canadians. There is no question of "protection" but of positive contribution within a positive culture.

Letters To The Editor

The SEC And Open Meetings

Sir:

Any student who takes an interest in his student government must undoubtedly be concerned at the unwillingness of the SEC as a whole to open its doors to student participation other than in exceptional cases. The issue of open meetings for the SEC was brought up last year, and again this year, a great deal of discussion and argumentation has been introduced in its meetings concerning the matter.

Although it is generally conceded that order to efficiently administer and execute policy, an executive body must meet behind closed doors, no one can really question the obligation of a legislative body to hold open meetings. The basic difficulty with the SEC at the present time seems to be that it holds the responsibilities of both an executive and legislative body, and this has been the only really valid source of argument for closed meetings presented so far.

Within the SEC itself, which is composed of 16 representatives from the various undergraduate faculties and societies on campus, a minority group of four members including Morrie Shohet, President of the Students' Society, have fought long and hard for the principle of open meetings. Shohet put forward a plan which included the formation of a Presidential Cabinet, the setting up of an applications system for important student positions, and a Reports Committee which would compile and file permanent reports for all major student activities.

For a while, it had been hoped that Morrie Shohet's plan would go a long way towards a solution of the problems concerning the SEC. The cabinet was to have been appointed by and be responsible to the President of the Students' Society. Its function would have been to take over all the executive responsibilities of the SEC and leave this latter organ free as a legislative body which could and would then hold open meetings. The cabinet of course would hold closed meetings.

But up till now, the whole concept of an executive cabinet and open SEC meetings has been jeopardized by some of the members of the Council who have consistently brought up irrelevant or invalid arguments. They feel, for instance, that if the SEC held open meetings, the student body would not be interested, and would not attend. This is obviously unfounded, since some students do attend at present open meetings. Then they argue that even if some students did attend anyway, the Council members might feel pressurized to speak what would be popular rather than according to their own consciences. Finally, they feel that if students could sit in on the meetings, the Council would lose prestige. These are invalid and irrelevant arguments that only serve to hide the real issues involved.

Also, at the last SEC open meeting, when the formation of a cabinet was discussed, the concept of it as an executive body seemed to have been completely perverted. This was no longer an executive

New Symphonic Band Needs Musicians Badly

Anyone who happened to be around the Union at the supper hour last Wednesday must have heard an unfamiliar cacophony of musical expression emanating from the Ballroom. The source of this music was the McGill Symphonic Band, a recently-formed organization whose purpose it is to provide a musical outlet for students who have had previous instruction on brass, woodwind, or percussion instruments. Until now, such an outlet was unavailable to many student musicians who, though not of professional calibre, yet are able to read music reasonably well and (just as important), enjoy playing.

Every group must have its beginnings, the Symphony Band being no exception, so that last Wednesday this year's initial rehearsal was held. For the first practice, the results were surprisingly encouraging, and there is every indication that a fruitful season of activity lies ahead. However, further expansion and complementation of instrumentation are planned, and, for this season, more student musicians are urgently needed. Any interested person should peruse the following paragraph carefully.

The Band holds one rehearsal per week, from 5 until 7 on Wednesday. This arrangement allows the remainder of the evening for studying or for other activities. In general, it is preferable for students to provide their own instruments, but, in certain cases, instrument can be supplied free of charge; music and stands are provided. One or more concerts are planned for the second term, depending on the overall progress of the Band. The Conductor is Mr. Morley Calvert, a graduate of McGill's own Conservatory of Music. Students who play the following instruments are eligible for membership: trumpet, trombone, horn, baritone, tuba (suzaphone), clarinet, saxophone, flute, oboe, bassoon, string bass, drums.

Anyone who can supply the names of prospective members, or who would like to make further inquiries, is asked to telephone the Band president, Alec Ramsay, at DE. 0758, or the manager, Brian Price, at AV. 8-1489.

Noted Harpsichordist To Play Next Week

Robert Veyron-Lacroix, the well-known French harpsichordist will be the soloist with the McGill Chamber Ensemble on Tuesday evening, December the 4th, in Redpath Hall. Mr. Lacroix is a recording artist for "L'Oiseau Lyre" and Westminster records, for whom he has recorded 4 harpsichord concerts by Haydn and the complete works for harpsichord by J.P. Rameau, both of which have been received with much interest by the general public.

Alexander Brott, the McGill ensemble's regular conductor will present program which consists of the following selections: Suite en Concert, by J.P. Rameau, concerto for harpsichord and strings by Haydn, and symphonie spirituelle by Hamerik. The Haydn piece will feature by Mr. Veyron-Lacroix as soloist. All the works in this program will be presented for the first time in Montreal. All students who are interested are cordially invited to attend this concert.

Ninety To Attend Revue Casting

As announced yesterday the auditions for this year's Revue were highly successful, with the unprecedented number of 150 students turning out. Of these, approximately 90 auditioned successfully and are under active consideration for acting, singing, and dancing roles in the show.

They will be contacted individually during the course of this week. Because the number of accomplished candidates is so high, it has been decided that it will be more efficient to concentrate the casting rehearsals in the four-day period of Monday to Thursday of next week, rather than spread them over a two-week period. The list of potential cast members is being divided into four groups. The members of each group will be asked to attend one of four casting rehearsals, on either Monday or Tuesday, noon or evening. On Wednesday and Thursday rehearsals roles will be assigned to individual performers. Casting will thus be virtually complete next Friday.

There will be no evening rehearsal on the night of Wednesday December the 5th, and dancing rehearsals will be resumed when casting is completed. The Revue executive wishes to thank all those who auditioned last week, and asks for their co-operation in the complex task of finding, among so much talent, the right person for the right role.

"Hawaian Holiday" Theme Chosen For 1956 Prom

A limited number of tickets will soon be on sale for the Hawaiian Holiday, the 1956 version of the McGill Prom. They will go on sale Monday, December 3rd in all the major centres about the campus. In addition to new and original ideas installed in this year's Prom, there will be two bands playing, providing constant musical entertainment throughout the evening. Eddie Alexander and his Orchestra will be the feature attraction, supplying music along a quiet vein, while a Rock and Roll Band will play for those couples desiring a more energetic evening.

The Hawaiian theme has opened up the gates for a more unique and exciting decoration scheme than ever before. Palm trees and other South Sea effects will provide a wonderful setting, and will help make this dance one of the big formals of the year.

The date of the Prom is Dec. 21. The tickets cost five dollars per couple, including free corsage.

Teams Hold Test Debate For New York Tour

The team to represent McGill at the New York Hall of Fame Debating Tournament has been announced by the Debating Union. Society Travelling to New York this weekend will be Bob Gualtieri, Nancy Adams, Phil Deswick and Norman May. Teams of two will take opposite sides of the U. S. National topic "Resolved that the U. S. should discontinue direct economic aid to foreign countries." Today at 1 p.m. in the Union ballroom the McGill teams will oppose each other on the topic.

ONTARIO HYDRO

We have openings on our Junior Engineer Training Course for 1957 graduates in Electrical, Mechanical, and Civil Engineering, as well as Engineering Physics. Representatives will be at McGill University on December 3, 4, and 5, to interview interested candidates.

You are invited to attend an advance showing of Ontario Hydro's latest film release, under the auspices of the Undergraduate Engineering Society, illustrating the program of expansion throughout the Province. This film will be shown in Room 306, Engineering Building, on Friday, November 30, at 1.00 p.m.

You may obtain an application form and an appointment by consulting your Placement Office on campus.

Demolition of Carnegie Hall Imminent

NEW YORK. (UP) — Carnegie Hall will be torn down to make way for an office building, it was announced today. The Glickman Corporation, which purchased the hall last June, said, "Plans will be processed immediately for demolition of the building and its replacement by a gigantic, ultra-modern office building. Carnegie Hall will stand at least until April, 1959, and the Philharmonic will continue to give its New York City concerts there until that time, when its lease expires," the announcement said.

Dr. ROSCOE TO OPEN WOMEN'S BAZAAR

CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

A mammoth bazaar is to be staged by the Women's Union in the R.V.C. dining hall on this Thursday, November 29, from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. A visit to this affair will be well worth while, as some excellent gift ideas in knitting, sewing and cooking will be sold at reasonable prices. More expensive articles will be raffled at the event and tea will be served between the hours of 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. Dr. Roscoe is to officially open the bazaar. The full proceeds will be donated to the Women's Union Scholarship Fund, which provides the means to help the women who are financially unable to continue at McGill University.

The quality of the articles received so far is excellent, but there is still pronounced lack of quantity. Many of those who pledged by telephone to contribute have not yet done so. These things may be brought in at any time on Tuesday or Wednesday. Cooking should come in Wednesday afternoon or at any time Thursday morning. Donations may be placed in the boxes by the Information Desk or at the Women's Union office in R.V.C. The cooperation of all those who pledged contributions is essential to the success of the bazaar.

Remember, all students, graduates, and friends of McGill University are invited, so come and bring your friends.

Industry Turns To Liberal Artsmen

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — (UP) — Industry, faced with an increasing shortage of engineering and science graduates, is turning more and more to liberal arts students, reports Ward L. Taylor of the University of Rochester.

Taylor, placement officer, said the number of firms engaging liberal arts graduates is still far below the normal demand for engineers and scientists.

"But," he added, "the under-supply of new technical personnel is compelling industry to the realization that liberal arts graduates can be employed effectively in many manufacturing processes if adequate orientation and on-the-job training is provided."

Taylor believes the ever-advancing demand for college-trained personnel that began in 1951 will continue for at least another year and perhaps for an indefinite period.

He said the UR placement office already has received an "overwhelming" number of requests for campus recruiting visits from business firms and government agencies.

"And we've had to turn many away because the engineering recruiting schedule for 1956-57 is filled," Taylor added.

Figures compiled by the UR placement offices show that members of the 1956 graduating class were sought by more employers and received more offers with higher starting salaries than those of any preceding year.

"An interesting point," Taylor revealed, "is that employers were not as concerned as they were a year ago about every applicant's military status."

Teaching Where Taught

By Edith Goldstein

University professors generally lead very interesting lives — they have opportunities to travel, to meet the famous names of our day, to see what many universities are like. Here at McGill we have a wealth of such experience. The following interview with Assistant Professor M. Brecher of the Political Science department is the second in our series of professorial profiles.

Intellectual Image

Dr. Brecher is an example of what one writer called the new image people have of the intellectual: a man preoccupied rather than absent-minded.

This quality of intense interest in politics — a field which can be defined to include most important things that happen in the world today — coupled with an easy-going manner characterize Dr. Brecher's conversation. He is a tallish man and comparatively young; he graduated from McGill with a BA only ten years ago.

From Dr. Brecher we learned that he had done his post-graduate work at Yale, obtaining an MA in '48 and a PhD in '53. "Before handing in my doctoral thesis I spent two years in Israel," he explained. "I had become tired of constantly going to school. Part of the time was spent on a kibbutz (collective settlement), Mayon Baruch, which was 300 yards from the Syrian border. I was rather good as a carpenter."

He commented on the vitality of the new state, the dynamic way the arts were flourishing; poets and musicians were turning out good work. "In Jerusalem there was a group of such people, men with whom I could spend hours discussing intellectual interests. It is as much as you could wish for in any city; and, considering that the city doesn't have a large population, it was encouraging."

He had also spent some time in India, working on the doctoral thesis which was later published under the title "The Kashmir Impasse". When, after three years of teaching at McGill, he got a Nuffield Fellowship, enabling him to travel wherever he wished to do research, Dr. Brecher chose to go back and make a study of Nehru. "Nehru is the articulate spokesman for what I consider is one of the most significant phenomena of our time," Dr. Brecher told us. "He symbolizes the attempts of ancient societies to catch up with the twentieth century."

Interviewed Officials

Before going to India, however, he and his wife spent six months in England, where he interviewed senior British officials and others, including Attlee, who could shed light on what had happened in India. "They were most co-operative," he told us, "as far as information and documents go, England has about as complete a supply of what I needed as any country."

And London was pleasant to live in. "Theatre, music, public lectures, are all of high calibre. The ballet if anything is even better than that in New York. Another nice thing was the availability of continental groups, who come over to play in London."

Nehru Adulated

Then came India, and Nehru in person. "Aside from some talks with him, he invited me to come with his entourage when he went on a three-day trip, to Hyderabad and elsewhere. It would be unfair to make a thumb-nail assessment of Nehru here. But I can say that the sight of the hero-worship, the adoration and adulation that man commands, is a unique experience to a westerner. He would leave the train and speak to an assembled crowd, using nothing in the nature of a body-guard. He does have some political enemies, surprisingly few for a man in his position. But while some disagree with him, he is admired by almost everyone."

Dr. MICHAEL BRECHER

India has progressed under his leadership. "Compared to the first time I was there, the people exhibited a new esprit; they felt they had broken through, overcome some of the most pressing problems. But even now the caste system is not thoroughly done away with. Politicians take it into account, and are careful to put up for election men of the same caste as the majority in the constituency; they know that otherwise the candidate wouldn't be elected."

Dr. Brecher also spoke of another side of Indian life, the diplomatic circle. "From October to April, the social season there, there are a large number of cocktail parties, banquets. Sometimes there is a cocktail party about every day. The same people always are invited to the parties, so it can get very dull. The whole thing is mainly a throw-back to earlier days, when all the diplomats were aristocrats."

Such modernity and sophistication on the part of a large group of educated Indians and Europeans makes New Delhi, with its Washington-like buildings, an artificial island in greater India. "Unfortunately, the Europeans tend to remain in their own cliques," Dr. Brecher commented.

Dr. Brecher had tried to avoid doing this, he had mingled with the Indian population as much as possible. For his work alone he had interviewed about 250 Indians.

Now, back in Montreal with his wife and two daughters, Dr. Brecher is occupied with teaching and writing the book on Nehru. After his considerable travels, he finds it pleasant to be in one place for awhile.

$1,280 Voted Indonesia By WUS Committee At UBC

The WUS Committee at the University of British Columbia has voted $1,280 towards the Programme of Action to be used to purchase equipment and supplies for the Surabaya Hostel in Indonesia. The project is part of the national effort of WUS in Indonesia to provide student lodging in the main university centres. Already hostels built, to provide accommodation for 200-300 students have been opened in Djogjakarta, and a new one is shortly to be opened in Jakarta.

In Surabaya, WUS, in association with the Student's Council, will open 9 housing units this year; each unit will provide accommodation for 12 students, and will be run on a co-operative basis by the students themselves. The major cost of these units will be borne by Indonesian students and the total WUS contribution, which has been assured by UBC, will amount to $1,280 only.

$750 has already been received from UBC for national administration, on a basis of 10c per student. The WUS Committee at UBC derives its income from a levy of $1 per student; the proceeds from this levy are used to provide five exchange scholarships annually and to support the total WUS programme. This year UBC has received WUS scholars from Nigeria, South Africa, Germany, and Malaya, and, in turn, five UBC students are on scholarships.

Over 7000 Enrolled At McGill

The number of students at McGill is continuing to increase at a rapid pace. According to an incomplete tabulation released by the Registrar's office, 7,300 students will carry on their studies at McGill in 1956-57.

This figure is an increase of 400 over last year's registration of 6,918.

The largest rise is in the Faculty of Engineering, in which enrollment is greater by 134 than last year's registration of 1,583.

The number of coeds studying for a B.A. degree has increased significantly, while the number of men has decreased.

Registration in first year Law has gone up by more than one-third to ninety-one. Also, enrollment in Science has shown a rise.

The School of Commerce has shown the most substantial drop. Only 383 are enrolled as compared to last year's 420. Decreases have also occurred in Architecture, Physical Education, Physical and Occupational Therapy.

The total registration in Medicine, Dentistry, Divinity, and Social Work has remained fairly constant. Slight increases were shown in Nursing, Library, and in registration of students at MacDonald College.

Although partial students are fewer by nine, 287 more students are studying for degrees.

The increase this year in student enrollment seems to be due to the rising population of Montreal or general popularity of McGill, but the full impact will come in another four or five years, when there is likely to be an avalanche of thousands more asking for admission.

American Math Expert To Speak On Computers

This week, the McGill Mathematical Society is fortunate in having as invited guest lecturer one of the foremost mathematicians in North America: Professor John Todd, of the Washington Bureau of Standards. Professor Todd will deliver two lectures: one on the graduate level on Wednesday afternoon, and one on the undergraduate level to the (student) Mathematical Society on Thursday.

Professor Todd was born in England and received his education at Cambridge University. He is an outstanding algebraist and a top man in the computation field.

For the past four years, he has been head of the computers section at the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, D.C.

The subject matter of Professor Todd's lecture will be the theory and applications of computers in modern mathematics. The lecture will take place on Thursday, Nov. 29, at 1 p.m., in the main lecture room of the Physics Building. Everyone interested is invited to attend.

Scope Presents Noted French Pianist

Philip Entrement, twenty-two year old French pianist, will give a recital tomorrow night in Moyse Hall.

Sponsored by SCOPE, the concert will be free to McGill students, upon presentation of student identification cards. The public will be charged $1.50 for tickets.

Entrement scored a noteworthy success in Philadelphia recently, in a concert with the Philadelphia Orchestra. In their review of his concert, one newspaper took note of the fact that the entire orchestra stood to applaud him upon completion of a piece.

Fraternities Help Children's Hospital

The Montreal Children's Hospital was the scene of activity last Monday night as about ninety students from the women's fraternities and most of the Phi Delta Theta Fraternity helped the Hospital to move to its new quarters on the corner of Essex Street and Dorchester Avenue.

The girls were working in the Nurses' residence. Every women's fraternity on the Campus was represented by eight members or more.

Across the street in the Hospital proper the men were busy making up and moving beds, as well as scrubbing and polishing. Mr. Jack Doyle of Phi Delta Theta said: "The turnout was exceptional. Ninety-five per cent of the fraternity turned up, actually all those available."

Senior Cagers Open Basketball Season In Exhibition Tonight At Plattsburg

By Stuart Smith

The 1956-7 edition of the McGill Senior Redmen (Basketball variety) make their first appearance of the season tonight when they encounter the Plattsburg State Teachers College in the New York town.

Joe Anderson, coach of the squad, will bring most of his boys along with him on this trip, especially since it is an exhibition game. It is felt that this tilt will give Joe a chance to see some of the newer members of the team perform in competition.

The famous McGill injury jinx seems to have struck the basketballers now that the football season is over, as no less than three of Anderson's regulars may be sidelined for the game. Don Wright, high-scoring guard, is nursing an ankle injury; Ozzie Zommers is recovering from an operation on his knee, and Sonny Gordon's leg is still on the mend.

On the bright side of the ledger, however, is the fact that Justin Cross, the lanky centre from Maine, now playing with the Redmen, will be able to make the trip. He and Captain Leon Duplessis will give to McGill the added height they require, especially against so tall a team as Plattsburg.

Finny Heffernan, George Rosenberg and Tim Leary, all of whom saw action last season, will perform tonight, along with John Finch, who started last year, but was forced to drop out.

Among the newcomers who will take the floor against the Americans are Morty Cohen, Leon Solomon, and Frank Scheider. This trio performed brilliantly with last season's Intermediate crew and will probably give the Redmen much-needed control around the backboards.

Anderson felt that Plattsburg has as strong a team as any Canadian college that McGill will meet this year. Pointing to the fact that the Yankee squad has a height advantage over the Montrealers.

Laval To Play Host To Carabins As Hockey Season Opens Tonight

With only a single All-Star football game left to be played in Canada, the limelight has now turned to the hockey front.

The Intercollegiate Hockey League is scheduled to open tonight when Laval and University of Montreal tangle at Quebec.

All four clubs in the league have been busy trimming their squads down to size for their season's openers. For the past few days the teams have been playing exhibition games.

Last Friday evening the Redmen walloped CMR 7-0 at Winter Stadium in their last pre-season exhibition contest. Also on Friday night, Clarkson College eked out a 4-3 win over Laval in a game played at Potsdam, N. Y. The win ran Clarkson's consecutive hockey winning streak to 22 games stretching over a period of four years.

On Saturday, Laval beat St. Lawrence College 5-3 at Canton, N. Y. This was St. Lawrence's first game of the season. Pierre Raymond gained a hat-trick for the winners. Raymond ended up sixth in the individual scoring last season and scored 15 goals. Maurice Lagace got the other two tallies for Laval. The St. Lawrence crew was able to keep abreast with Laval in the first period; each team scored once. The more experienced Laval pucksters rammed in the goals in each of the last two periods. St. Lawrence answered with a single encounter in each frame.

Saturday evening, at Troy, N.Y. U. of M. last year's Intercollegiate tail-enders defeated Rensselaer Polytechnic 4-2 in a game highlighted by 21 penalties. Montreal picked up fifteen and RPT received six. The score was tied 1-1 after the first canto. The Carabins added two goals in the second period and another in the third. Pierre Renaud scored twice for U. of M.

From Toronto comes word that last year's champion Blues have lined up an exhibition contest against Toronto St. Mike's of the Junior OHA. The game is scheduled to be played tonight in Toronto. The Blues will probably have more former Junior players dressed for the Blues are stronger than ever and are a cinch to repeat last this tilt than St. Mike's. According to reports from the Queen City, year's championship.

Coach Jack Kennedy has made up his mind on practically his whole lineup. There are still three goalies battling it out for the goaltending chores. Kennedy plans to pick two goal-tenders from the three he now has on hand. They are Al Cacutti who played last season and newcomers Hugh Curry and Ray Dunn. Kennedy plans to settle this problem after tonight's game.

As for the attacking units, they are pretty well settled. Veteran Brian Anderson will center one with newcomer Clare Fisher and Ken Linesman on the wings. Linesman won the individual scoring race last year on 18 goals and 13 assists. He was tops also in the goal scoring department. Dud Kearney, Dunc Brodie and Grant Mills will form another line. The third unit will probably consist of Mike Elik, John MacDonald and Mert Wright. Toronto captain Dave Stephen and veteran Jackson will head the blueline corps. Ex Barrie Flyer Lorry Stacey will team up with Neil Monroe. The latter has previously played with the Regina

Pats in the Canadian chain and with the University of Saskatchewan. Bob Church up from the Intermediates will be the extra defenceman.

In addition to tonight's league opener at Quebec, the Toronto Blues will play U. of M. at Winter Stadium on Thursday night. On Friday evening the Redmen will open their season against Toronto in the official opening of MWS.

Rugger Team To Receive Trophy

The Quebec Rugger Union Trophy will be presented to McGill on Friday, November 30. The McGill rugger squad won the Intercollegiate championship this year, making it seven in a row. In addition to this, they also won the City championship by downing Town of Mount Royal 19-6. The presentation of the trophy will take place at the Town of Mount Royal Rugger Club dance which will take place at the Town of Mount Royal Town Hall, commencing at 8:00 p.m. All members of the McGill Rugger Club are invited and urged to attend. Tickets may be obtained from Alex Bible or at the door for $1.50 each.

The McGill rugger party is to be held on Thursday, November 29, in the COTC Mess in the Currie Gymnasium.

Olympic Review

MELBOURNE. (Tuesday) Nov. 27. (UP) — Paul Anderson won the heavy-weight weightlifting event in an epic three-hour test of Herculean strength with Argentina's Humberto Selvetti today to climax a United States assault on world and Olympic records that resulted in four Gold Medals.

Anderson's triumph, one of the most dramatic in Olympic history, was finally achieved at 3 A.M. Melbourne time today (about noon EST). The massive Toccon, Ga., strong man thus gave the United States its 11th Gold Medal of the Olympiad and helped bail the U. S. a 172-107 point-lead over Russia in the unofficial standings.

The spectacularly successful U.S. team went right back into today's competition, eyeing three and possibly four more Gold Medals — one each in the discus and 200-meter run and perhaps two in rowing.

The United States basketball team, which crushed the Philippines, 121-53, Monday also is expected to sweep to its fourth straight victory in a game with Bulgaria beginning at 1:30 A.M. (E.S.T.).

The great day for the United States began with the Rev. Bob Richards of Laverne, Calif., winning the Pole Vault with an Olympic record leap of 14 feet, 11½ inches, long Tom Courtney of Livingston, N. J., overtaking an unheralded British runner to win the 800-meter run in a record 1:47.7 and Tommy Kono of Sacramento, Calif., winning the light heavy-weight lifting title while setting world records in both the jerk and total weight.

But it remained for the 23-year old Anderson to provide the day's climax with one of the most dramatic triumphs in Olympic annals — a colossal duel of strength with Selvetti which the 304-pound American won only because he was the smaller man!

With an awed crowd looking on at the Melbourne exhibition Hall into the early hours of the morning, the two modern-day Samsons matched the staggering total lift of 1,102 pounds. Anderson finally was awarded the Gold Medal under Olympic weightlifting rules because Selvetti weighted in officially at 316 pounds — 12 more than the U. S. world-record-holder. Anderson's performance ended

McGill Students Will Pay 40 cents

According to the calculations of the President of NFCUS, each McGill Student will have to pay about 40c per annum for membership. This fee goes toward the upkeep of the organization as well as such projects as scholarships, debating conferences and regional and national conferences.

Earlier in the year, it was thought that the SEC budget was not large enough to provide for McGill's reentry, but it appears that "the matter of funds will not pose any important obstacle in the SEC's stand on NFCUS".

As to what the SEC plans to do about NFCUS in the near future, Ordover replied, "we will try and educate the students of McGill on the question of NFCUS so that they will understand its advantage as well as its failures".

body, but rather a new name given to an already existing group of four or five minister members to coordinate their activities and alleviate the burdens of each one, the topic of executive functions being pushed aside almost completely.

The whole purpose of forming a cabinet seems to have been forgotten even before this cabinet is formed.

Morrie Shohet's plan, as it stands, most likely has some snags in it, and if it were passed, it would have to be flexible enough so that it could effectively deal with these snags. At any rate, it is imperative that steps be taken in the right direction for the separation of the executive from the legislative function of the SEC, and the opening of the meetings of the SEC lest the gulf between the students and their leaders becomes unsurmountable. If the present members of the SEC cannot or will not act, then it is the prerogative of every McGill student to elect representatives to the SEC on December 6 who will act in a positive manner towards the solution of the problems facing our student government.
